

DIXON HIGH FIRST AND SECOND TEAMS DEFEAT MT. MORRIS

Visitors No Match for Either of Local Organizations.

The Dixon high school first and second teams defeated Mt. Morris at the north side athletic field yesterday afternoon by a score of 13 to 6. The second string players started the contest and scored a touchdown in the first period, but the first squad was sent onto the field in the second period and had no difficulty in plowing through the visiting line for long gains and putting the oval over the second time. The visitors were absolutely helpless against the heavy line smashes of the first squad members.

Coach Jones of Mt. Morris objected strenuously to the substitution of the first team in the second half, claiming that it was agreed that the second team would be played against his eleven. Coach Bowers explained that he was trying out new plays and formations which he plans to use in the near future. This excuse, however, did not appease the visiting coach, who insisted the action was unsportsmanlike.

Miller Bright Star
At the opening of the third period, the second team crew went back into the battle and finished it. The third touchdown of the afternoon went over in the final period for Dixon. Miller was the outstanding star of the second team lineup and tore through the visiting line repeatedly for long gains. This player has the appearance of being eligible for first team position, even though he lacks weight, he makes up for it with his speed and aggressiveness. Rymerson and Egler both had a chance in the backfield at quarter.

In the last four minutes of play, Mt. Morris intercepted a pass and worked the ball down to Dixon's goal, where with a line plunge, they sent the pigskin over for a touchdown. Sampson for the visitors, played true to his name. In line plunges the Dixon school fell back and could not stop him. In every play where a gain was necessary, Sampson was given the ball and smashed through Dixon's line.

The Lineup
Mt. Morris—Glottelty, c; Hill, rg; Tracey lg; Kable rt; Gundahl lt; Yoder qb; Schuck lb; Avey qb; Johnson rfb; McNett lfb; Sampson fb.

Dixon—Aschenbrenner c; Holman rg; Keyser lg; Burd rt; Bondi lt; McReynolds qb; Goss lb; Rymerson, Egler qb; Buyer lfb; Miller fb.
Officials—Anderson, Illinois, referee; Gorham, Dixon, umpire; Potter, Dixon, head linesman; Jeter, Illinois, timer.

All England Awaits Lloyd George's Word on Political Battle

London, Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—All nominations for seats in the British parliament must be in the hands of responsible officials by noon today.

At breakfast time this morning everyone was still wondering if Lloyd George was really going to release his host of reserves and by eleven hour nominations finally fulfill his threat to spread the war against the Conservatives who overthrew him. So far 1370 candidates have been nominated and of these only 170 are listed as National Liberals under the banner of Lloyd George, while the Conservatives, generally called Unionists, have 465 in the field. The Laborites are next with 410 and the Independent Liberals, led by former Prime Minister Asquith, have 325 candidates on their slate.

Perhaps Lloyd George will keep the country guessing up to the last minute. He is scheduled to begin a speech in London at 11 o'clock this morning, and few think he will make his real position clear until that hour.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—A definite trend away from the leadership of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Mine Workers, was revealed here today, when tellers at state headquarters made their official report, showing that Mr. Farrington had received second place in the nomination, and consequently would have second place on the miners' ballot.

He was forced from first place by John Hindmarsh of Riverton, who was nominated 131 times to Farrington's 131.

CROSS-COUNTRY AVIATORS DOWN IN IND. TODAY

Forced to Land After Covering Over 2,000 Miles of Trip

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Dayton, O., Nov. 4.—Lt. MacReady and Lt. Oakley Kelly, army aviators, who were forced to land near Indianapolis this morning after completing 2,060 miles on an attempted non-stop flight from San Diego to New York, arrived at McCook Aviation Field here at 12:15 o'clock today and reported to Major T. H. Bane, their commanding officer.

In giving to Major Bane their first official report of the flight, the aviators revealed that during their nearly 30 hours in the air, they were in the midst of a storm and rain for 11 hours and 30 minutes.

In crossing the mountains, the wind was so strong that it threatened several times to turn their ship over.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Lieutenants Oakley Kelly and John MacReady, attempting a trans-continental air flight, were forced down at Fort Ben Jamin Harrison, near here, at 3:15 today.

According to the officers, the raquet sprung a leak shortly after they left San Diego, but it did not become serious until near Indianapolis. Neither of the men was injured in the landing, which took place on the Military Aviation Field. The men said they had traveled 2,060 miles.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

C., Nov. 4.—Although they did not succeed in their attempt to fly across the continent without a landing, Lieutenants MacReady and Kelly, piloting the army airplane T-2, are believed by air service officials here to have set a new distance record by their non-stop flight from San Diego, Cal., to Indianapolis, Ind.

Delay Action in Murder Case Until After Election Day

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 4.—Action will be delayed in the Hall-Mills murder case until after election next Tuesday, according to reports today. Then it will be presented to the grand jury. Only a few witnesses will be used before the grand jury, although Deputy Attorney General Mott, has a much more complete case prepared for trial, this report has it.

"Shucks, they have been talking about arrests for the last four weeks," James Mills, husband of Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, choir leader who was slain with the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, said today when told of the latest reports. "Why don't they do something? I don't believe they will ever do anything about this crime."

Saved Mother But Lost Her Own Life

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Miss Bernice Helm, 25 years old, saved her mother home by her own life in an apartment house fire early today. The young woman was burned to death.

The fire originated in the basement and the flames shot up a chute to the fifth and top floor of the thirty-family building, routing the occupants of all floors, and occupants of adjoining apartments, nearly 400 persons being driven to the street.

Miss Helm aroused her mother and led her to the fire escape. The girl stepped back into the building and did not reappear. Afterward firemen found her body not far from the window through which she entered.

ZUPPKE STILL KING PIN OF CONFERENCE

FOOT BALL MENTORS

Record Shows Illinois' Football Teacher is Victory Getter.

Urbana, Ill.—Bob Zuppke is still the king pin of western conference football coaches.

This may seem like a sweeping statement for little Bob had a bad season in 1921, losing every Big Ten battle until he furnished the famous upset at Ohio. And the green Illini squad this year, although it played Iowa to a standstill, has lost to Michigan decisively and must develop remarkably to overcome its November opponents, Wisconsin, Chicago and Ohio.

But Bob, you see, has a whacking good record to fall back upon—not a bad thing when a football coach needs a friend. At Illinois they didn't hammer Zuppke last year and no word of criticism has been uttered this season.

For Zuppke still has the edge in point of games won and lost every rival institution in the conference—except one.

That is Michigan. When Coach Yost defeated Illinois at Ann Arbor the other day, he evened up the count. Illinois, since the day of Zuppke, has won twice from the Wolverines and they have defeated the Illini twice.

Supremacy Over Chicago

Illinois' fond dreams in the ante-Zuppke days was of a team that could lick Chicago just once in a while. There was a long stretch of eight years from 1910 to 1919 in which Illinois' best was one tie with the Maroons. But Zuppke, when he came to Illinois in 1913, soon changed things. Since his regime opened, the score is:

Games won—Illinois, 5; Chicago, 3; tied, 1.

Minnesota under Dr. Williams had terrorized the western gridiron. But when the Gopher coach retired, the Zuppke-Minnesota record stood:

Games won—Illinois, 4; Minnesota, 2; tied, 1.

Illini Leads Ohio

Illinois-Ohio rivalry is famous. In the last decade each team has won three conference championships. But Zuppke goes Dr. Willie just a little better. In addition he has one tie for the championship to his credit. And he still leads Ohio, as follows:

Games won—Illinois, 4; Ohio, 3; tied, 1.

Howard Jones, coach of Iowa, despite victories over the Illini last year still lags behind. Zuppke's slate with Iowa is:

Games won, Illinois, 3; Iowa, 2.

Has Edge on Badgers

Zuppke has met his own alma mater, Wisconsin, eight times. The reckoning to date leaves him a game to the good. The Wisconsin-Illinois record since Zuppke coached the Illini is as follows:

Games won—Illinois, 4; Wisconsin, 3; tied, 1.

Zuppke has defeated Purdue three times and has been tied once by the Boilermakers. Previously to the Illinois-Northwestern game this season he had licked the Purple three times and Northwestern had never won or tied. And Zuppke won the solitary game Illinois played Indiana under his direction.

There have been the reason for the perfect confidence in Zuppke, manifested by Illinois alumni and students. They figure that a coach good enough in a decade of coaching to have a margin of victory over every other Big Ten university except one—and that one tied—will deliver the goods if he has the stuff with which to work.

And here's a little secret: Illinois expects to beat at least one of its November foes—Wisconsin, Chicago and Ohio. The dope hardly points that way.

But Zuppke is at the helm!

Mary McSweeney is Arrested in Raids

Dublin, Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—Miss Mary McSweeney was among several persons arrested in the home of Mrs. Humphreys on the Salisbury Road here, after a fight between the opponents and national army troops who were presumably seeking to arrest Eamon De Valera, reported to be hiding in this city. The search failed to reveal the republican leader. DeValera is believed to have escaped from the house last night.

Commandant General Ernest O'Malley, one of the most active of the republican leaders was dangerously wounded and arrested.

Madame O'Rahilly, whose husband was killed in the 1916 insurrection was wounded.

Shiela Humphreys, daughter of the owner of the home and niece of O'Rahilly, was slightly wounded. She was arrested.

YEA, VERILY, POLITICS DOES MAKE STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

Continue Fight to Show Clara Phillips Subject to Insanity

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 4.—Attorneys for Mrs. Clara Phillips charged with the murder of Mrs. Albert Tremaine Meadows, who was beaten to death with a hammer, were busy today preparing for the introduction on Monday of testimony of alienists in support of the insanity defense. No session of the trial was held today.

Mrs. Phillips, under cross examination, stuck to her story told under direct examination, that Mrs. Meadows had admitted an intimacy with the defendant's husband, Armour L. Phillips, and that it was Mrs. Peggy Caffee, former chorus girl chum of Mrs. Phillips, and not the defendant, who attacked Mrs. Meadows with a hammer.

Mrs. Caffee is the state's star witness. She testified she saw Mrs. Phillips strike Mrs. Meadows repeatedly with a hammer.

Woman Seeking to Supplant Kellogg

By Associated Press Leased Wire

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 4.—Eleventh hour campaigning has sharpened interest in the United States senatorial contest to be determined in Tuesday's election in Minnesota, in which Frank B. Kellogg is opposed for re-election by two candidates, one a woman. W. G. McAdoo and William J. Bryan have been used to further the candidacy of Mrs. Anna Dickie Olesen, while Senator La Follette has been speaking in favor of the Farmer-Labor party.

Another woman seeking office of national importance is Mrs. Lillian C. Gault of St. Peter, democratic candidate for congress from the third district in opposition of Representative Charles Davis. Mrs. Gault was mayor of St. Peter for one year.

Large Barn Burns South of Walnut

A large barn on the farm of Charles Dahstrom, seven miles south of Walnut, burned to the ground early Tuesday morning with all its contents, which included two horses, hay and other things. A large hay stack in the barn yard also burned. It is a mystery how the barn caught fire, as the barn was locked the night before and the fire started before anyone of the household had been out of the house.

HUNTERS BACK FROM DR. SICKEL'S CAMP IN THE NORTH WOODS

Fine Hunting Season En- joyed By Visitors at Jisheba Lodge.

With the return of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Sickles at the end of this week the happy hunting grounds of "our" particular section of the great north woods will be again forsaken by Dixon people, until another year rolls around.

This year in "Jisheba Lodge" the Sickles' hunting camp on the Bowstring River in the lake and timber region of Minnesota near the Canadian border, was a splendid one for the hunter, fisherman or canoe enthusiast. Dr. Sickles and his guests returned laden with the "limit" in game and fish. Mallards came into the wild rice fields by the thousands. Partridge abounded throughout the woods and the mild weather kept even the wall-eyed pike in the shallow waters where he could be captured if you could get a certain tall, blue eyed, curly-headed northlander to show you where.

Dr. Sickles' camp, which includes a fine large log cabin, garage, boat-house, and ice house, is ideally located on a high bank in sharp bend in the Bowstring river, a stream connecting Bowstring, Sand and Rice lakes with the Big Fork river, water that flows north into Hudson Bay.

Launches, row boats and canoes form the fleet, and a jitney with a boat trailer gives easy access to inland lakes and other waterways in the vicinity.

The camp is far removed from the settlements, Deer River being forty miles south and International Falls about eighty miles north. Deer, (Continued on Page 7)

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Women students at Northwestern University slept in shifts last night, taking turns at guard duty watching the dormitories for thieves.

When a new fur coat was stolen from the room of one of the girls last night, the co-eds decided to undertake the task of thief-catching at which faculty and police had failed. Jewelry, clothing and even class notes have been stolen in a series of dormitory robberies recently. One woman student was questioned for several hours by fellow students in the co-ed investigation.

Three Ships Afire in Cincinnati Port

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 4.—The Ohio River Steamers, Island Queen and Morning Star, are on fire at their wharf boat here and are expected to be a total loss. The boats are not under steam. The only person aboard the boats was the watchman, first reports said.

The Island Queen and Morning Star were owned by the Coney Island Company, and carried thousands of persons to and from this summer resort during the summer months.

Before being able to escape from the harbor the passenger and freight steamer, Tacoma, and the tow boat, Christ Green, caught fire.

An hour after the fire was discovered it appeared that the Island Queen, Morning Star and Tacoma would be burned to the waters edge. The Christ Green was also burning fiercely, and strenuous efforts were being made to save the boat.

Bonar Law Says Irish Treaty Must Be Given a Trial

Leeds, Eng., Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—Prime Minister Bonar Law, addressing an audience of three thousand persons here today said the view of the whole unionist party was that the Anglo-Irish treaty be given a fair trial.

LITTLE INTEREST IS BEING SHOWN IN COMING VOTE

Bonus and Wine and Beer Question Do Not Arouse Pep.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Nov. 4.—A quiet, off-year campaign opened its final drive in Illinois today with hardly a ripple above the surface to show there was agitation beneath.

The state as a whole has failed to show any marked enthusiasm for the problems at issue—a wet and dry fight, state soldiers' bonus referendum, election of congressmen, legislature, superintendent of public instruction, university trustees and county officers.

Here and there have been eruptions with all the intensity an old time politician could desire. Down in the eighteenth (Danville) district, there is a hot fight over the congressional seat which "Uncle" Joe Cannon has been holding down for most of the last 46 years.

In the sixteenth (Peoria) district there is a wet and dry battle on, with William E. Hull, who defeated Congressman Clifford Ireland for the republican nomination, classed as a wet, although he has maintained prohibition is not an issue.

In Chicago, where a special grand jury has been busy for two months indicting school trustees, employees and contractors on graft charges, the fight as usual is centered around the personality of Mayor William Hale Thompson and his principal backer, Fred Lundin.

Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck, daughter of the late Congressman William E. Mason, who is seeking election to fill her father's unexpired term, is the only woman candidate for a major office in this state.

"Quail Hunter," Noted Train Robber, Killed

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Wittenberg, Mo., Nov. 3.—Jack Kennedy, veteran Missouri train robber, and Harvey Logan, a former railroad man, were shot and killed today by postoffice inspectors, after they had robbed a mail car on a south bound passenger train of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway. The stolen mail, about 100 registered letters, was recovered.

According to official reports Kennedy was sentenced to a term in the Missouri penitentiary for robbing a St. Louis & San Francisco train some years ago. His arrest came about accidentally when two policemen patrolling a suburb of Kansas City, found him lying in the snow, benumbed with cold. A short distance away his horse was found with a rifle strapped to the saddle. When he was revived and questioned about his being heavily armed, Kennedy is said to have explained that he was "out quail hunting."

That gave him the appellation "the quail hunter" by which he thereafter was known in this section of Missouri.

Radio Fans Heard Several Concerts

Last night was an ideal one for local radio fans and some good concerts were heard at the various stations. Grover Wilhelm, who has installed one of the latest type of receiving apparatus picked up numerous stations during the evening. W. O. S. located at Washington, D. C., one that is not believed to have been heard here before was picked up after 9 o'clock and a musical program was heard from the national capital.

W. A. station at Arlington, the naval station, could be heard very plainly. W. G. Y. at Schenectady, N. Y., furnished an instructive address. W. B. A. P. at Ft. Worth, Tex., provided a pipe organ concert, and at midnight, K. Y. W. at Chicago concluded their program with "The French Doll."

LaMoille Man Killed When Car Turns Over

Augustus P. Drummer, 56, well known resident of LaMoille, was found dead Thursday morning in a ditch near the Larkin farm on the LaMoille road, north of Arlington. He was pinned under a Ford which had been upset, the bow of the top resting on his neck. He had been dead five or six hours when the patrolman, Walter E. Johns, made the discovery about 6 o'clock. A coroner's jury impaneled by Deputy Coroner R. M. Skinner returned a verdict stating that death resulted from suffocation.

Boys at Champaign Show Well-Known Illinois Fighting Spirit.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Urbana, Ill., Nov. 4.—Handicapped by cripples and the loss of Bill Augur, star tackle, in the wrangle with Wisconsin, Bob Zuppke's University of Illinois football team approached the Northwestern game here today with a certain amount of apprehension mixed with the well known Illini fighting spirit.

The whole Illini machine was upset more or less and the back field was almost shot to pieces by injuries. Neither Rune Clark or Chris Woodward were expected to be in shape to go against the Purple. Sam Hill was regarded as the most likely choice to take Woodward's place at full back, while Zuppke said he had about decided to toss a coin to determine who will start at quarterback. The selection was apparently between Dawson and Coutech.

Coach Zuppke raked over his material today to fill the other places madly vacated by Augur. Stolk will probably be picked to do the punting and will be Happenny's mate at half back.

With a record of three defeats, Illinois faces the Purple today with grim determination. It is Northwestern's first appearance on Illinois field since 1915.

DON'T QUIT—

When things go wrong as they sometimes will,
When the road you are treading seems all up hill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit, Rest if you must, but don't quit.
Life is queer with its twists and turns As everyone of us sometimes learns.
And many a failure turns about, When he might have won had he stuck it out.
Don't give up though the pace seems slow, You may succeed with another blow.
Often the goal is nearer than It seems to a faint and faltering man.
Often the struggle has been given up When he might have captured the victor's cup.
And he learned too late when the night slipped down,
How close he was to the golden crown.
Success is a failure turned inside out, The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you never can tell how close you are,
It may be nearer when it seems afar,
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit,
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

W. F. M. S. HELD MEETING THURSDAY—

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church held a very pleasant and profitable meeting at the home of Mrs. F. X. Newcomer and Mrs. Walgreen Thursday afternoon, with fifty-four in attendance.
The first part of the meeting was given over to business and reports of the District Convention recently held at Asaton, with Miss Morgan and Mrs. Dawson as the delegates, also the branch meeting at East St. Louis with Mrs. Withers as the delegate.
Mrs. Withers had the devotionals, the subject being on "Christian Giving." Mrs. Willard Thompson sang beautifully, "The City Four Square," "Handicaps to Progress," was the subject of the second chapter in the study book, "Building with India," and was most interestingly given by Mrs. Clara Rowe. Owing to the lateness of the hour, the lesson in the Mystery Box contest was omitted.
Three new members were reported. The date of the cafeteria supper (which the Society voted to have at the October meeting), is set for Nov. 26th. Members will please bear this in mind.

INFORMATION FOR COMMUNITIES CONCERNING RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE—

Neither does the nurse act as a charity agent. If she is thought of as a dispenser of material relief, her opportunities for service as a nurse are soon limited to the indigent; she gets the name of being a "charity nurse." On the other hand she secures the cooperation of the proper relief agency, keeping in touch with the patient until the responsibility for the condition needing relief has been assumed by such relief agency. Experience has shown that the scope of usefulness of a public health nurse is greatly broadened in a community by placing the work on a business basis, free from all association with relief giving. Many families who would not request the services of a nurse when the service is on a "charity basis" will readily do so when it is on a business basis.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED—

You do not stamp yourself as a social climber by constantly referring to celebrities and prominent people in your conversations. To do so indicates that you must have made something of a struggle to know such people or you would not be so eager to mention your achievements.
To those of assured social position such obvious methods of flaunting one's position are ridiculous as well as transparent.

Wet and Dry Issue Supreme in Missouri

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—As the Missouri campaign draws to a close, political observers declare the senatorial race between Senator James A. Reed, Dem., and R. R. Brewster, Rep., will be marked by defections on both tickets.

A goodly number of "wet" republicans, they say, will swing to Reed, while Brewster will receive the support of a large number of "dry" democrats and democrats who are dissatisfied with Reed because of his opposition to former President Wilson.

The prohibition question seems to have overshadowed all other issues. Reed has declared himself in favor of modifying the Volstead law, while Brewster has declared he would never vote to modify it.

Predicts Election of Many Republicans

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Victory for eighty-six Republican candidates for the lower house of the Illinois legislature and eighteen candidates for the state senate next Tuesday was predicted today by Walter M. Rosenfield, chairman of the Republican state committee.

Party control requires seventy-seven votes in the house and twenty-six in the senate, except in measures, including impeachment resolutions, requiring a two-thirds vote. There are twenty-five hold-over Republican senators.

Chairman Rosenfield predicted victory for the Republican state ticket by a margin of 200,000 votes.

DIXONITES OFFICERS IN ASSN. FORMED BY AUTO TIRE DEALERS

Ray Kline, Ray Shaver Chosen at Meeting in Sterling.

Sterling.—The Rock River Valley Tire Dealers Association was perfected Thursday evening at a banquet and meeting at the Y. M. C. A. cafeteria. Roy R. Bear was elected president of the new organization. Ray Kline of Dixon was elected vice president. S. R. Thackberry was elected secretary, and Roy Shaver was elected treasurer. Thos. F. Whitehead of Chicago, an officer of the National Tire Dealers Association, was present and after a short talk, assisted in the perfecting of the new organization. The meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

The other officers elected at the meeting were: Louis Long, director; Joe Hunt, sergeant at arms; and William Santee and Ray Kline of Dixon, delegates to the National convention which is to be held in Milwaukee, Nov. 14-15 and 16th, with Roy R. Bear, Louis Long and Joe Hunt as alternates. It was decided to hold the next meeting in Dixon at the Assembly Park hotel, on Thursday, Nov. 9th. About twenty-five were present at the meeting here Thursday night and the new association will get under way next week with a membership of thirty to forty.

Following the supper, Roy R. Bear, acting chairman, spoke briefly regarding the purpose of the meeting. Ray Kline was called upon to introduce the speaker of the evening, Mr. Whitehead of Chicago, with whom he was personally acquainted.

Mr. Whitehead gave a fine talk on Community buying. He touched on a problem which is vital with all communities. It is the idea of buying within the community as far as possible. Bill Jones runs a tire store, Lem Perkins a clothing store, and John White a dry goods store. It is right that Bill and Lem and John all buy of each other insofar as they can supply each other's needs. By buying at home, most of the money stays at home, everyone gets a chance at it and the big mail order houses soon discontinue sending their catalogues into the town. If each member of a local tire dealers association and their employees buy at home, they have the right to expect that the other merchants and their employees buy of them and such will be the case if each one carries out his part of it.

The speaker made several remarks of special interest to the dealers regarding the conducting of the business in a safe, sane and sensible manner. He then told of the organization of the first Tire Dealers association and how it had grown within the past few years and is each year making rapid strides forward, benefiting not the association alone but the consumer as well.

As the National convention convenes in Milwaukee in ten days, a number of the local dealers expect to attend. They will make the trip by auto.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

LIGHT WINES AND BEER

The students of today are going to run America tomorrow.

The majority of High School and College students, being more broad-minded and clearer-minded than all the idiots two and three times their own age who can't see any enjoyment in life unless they can be "stewed" and "pickled" half the time from the effects of beer, whiskey, gin, brandy, and other such mild poisons, desire to see this country dry—not moist, but dry.

November 7th is the day for all people who have any regard for their community, their state, their country, and, most of all, "Young America," to do their part in seeing that the liquor curse in this country is not made worse. How? Vote against light wines and beer; and for officials who advocate a dry nation.

"Light wines and beer" is absolutely nothing but a stepping stone to whiskey. And it's been admitted by wet people. It will not rid the country of the bootlegger. The bootleggers are not bootlegging light wines and beer. No, don't you ever believe it. They're bootlegging whiskey. And those who want beer are not drinking whiskey in its stead.

Thousands of people who drank before prohibition don't touch liquor now.

And it's been proved by drys and admitted by wets that 90 per cent of the semi-lunatics and would-be criminals that are drinking bootlegged "dope" today, didn't drink before prohibition and are doing it now simply to disobey the law. If they didn't have prohibition to "buck" they'd "buck" something else. All that we need is law-enforcement, not law-revirement. These fellows that are violating the prohibition amendment today ought to be loaded on a ship and taken down to central Africa where the rest of the savages live; and leave this country for the use of the peace-loving and law-abiding people it was inaugurated for.

As for the large number who would start this campaign, they didn't start this campaign. The men who are "pogging" for "light wines and beer" now, and indirectly for whiskey, are the liquor merchants—the gentlemen who can't find any other way to make money but to sell intoxicants to ignorant and innocent users.

There is no man in this country who wants liquor merely for his own use that would start a fight such as has been started to down a part of the supreme law of the land, which took the most strenuous efforts of all the broad minds in the country to make a part of the statutes.

Every intelligent man and woman in the good old United States of America knows that liquor is harmful to the human system, even if he won't admit it. So do your duty for "Young America," at least, even if you don't care anything for your older friends.

A Patriotic High School Student, P. S.—The above article contains the "straight-from-the-shoulder" opinions of an individual high school student of the city of Dixon who foresees the danger of the oncoming election, and was not solicited by any person or organization for the purpose of campaign propaganda.

Woman Giving Bob LaFollette a Race

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—The political campaign in Wisconsin, following the overwhelming vote of the progressive republican ticket headed by United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette, has been the quietest for many years, it being generally conceded that next Tuesday's vote will be a ratification of the primary election and state ticket are concerned. Senator LaFollette's principal opponent is Jessie Hooper of Oshkosh, who failed to qualify as a democratic party candidate at the primary and is in the race as an independent democrat.

Adolph R. R. Bucknam represents the prohibition party in the three-cornered race. Mrs. Hooper has made a pretty thorough canvass of the state and has been assisted by women from other states.

In the congressional race, interest is largely in the contests in the fourth and fifth districts. Edmund T. Melms and Victor L. Berger, Socialists, seeking election. Berger, who was twice refused his seat in congress following his election, has but one opponent. William H. Stafford, republican incumbent, John McAllahan, democrat, having withdrawn. Melms is opposed by John C. Shafer, republican. Indications point to the election of at least nine republicans to congress.

VOTE FOR THE BONUS

The ex-service men of Illinois are asking a very small recognition of their services in the war in the sol-der's compensation question that comes before the voters on a special ballot at Tuesday's election. The amount asked is extremely modest—much too small in the opinion of many. The service these boys rendered is beyond calculation. The expense of the compensation when spread over the tax books of the state
is so small that objection is ridiculous.

Practically every man who will receive this compensation will use it for the purchase of things he needs and the money, put directly into circulation, will be a benefit to general business. We can see no sensible argument against the granting of the bonus.

The Evening Telegraph hope that Lee county will give the bonus question a rousing big majority.

VOTE "NO" ON BEER

The effort to bring light wines and beer back to life looks like nothing less than the first step in the fight of the liquor interests to re-establish the old days of the open saloon and legiti-mate whiskey. The Telegraph believes that Lee county people are fairly of one mind on the booze question.
We hope that "light wines and beer"
will receive a very chilly reception at the polls on Tuesday. Find the little extra ballot and put your cross opposite "No."

ELECT JUDGE CRABTREE

County Judge John B. Crabtree is a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket and should receive the support of every Republican in the county as an appreciation of the splendid service he has rendered the county as Judge. His courageous stand in the matter of liquor infractions and his fair and just attitude in all matters of law that have come
within the jurisdiction of his court,
as well as his close attention to duties
and his well known reputation for

honesty and straightforwardness
have won for Judge Crabtree an enviable reputation in Lee county.
There is no criticism to be directed
at the young man who opposes Judge
Crabtree as the Democratic candidate
Atty. Sherwood Dixon. He is of fine character and in him the Democrats have a candidate they can support
without apology and he will without doubt receive a generous vote. We believe, however, that the majority of the voters of the county will feel that Judge Crabtree's excellent record in this very important office demands
his re-election.

EASTMAN GOOD CANDIDATE

Charles Eastman of Dixon, Republican candidate for County Treasurer has several advantages that should make him winner in his race against Frank Vaughan of Amboy, the Democratic candidate. Mr. Eastman is more or less new in politics, although he has been a lifelong resident of this county and his years of business in Dixon and his service in public work have gained him a wide circle of friends who are glad to support him
now.

Mr. Vaughan of Amboy, who some years ago served a term as County Treasurer is also widely known over the county and this affable gentleman
is also a good campaigner and a vote
getter, as he has demonstrated in the past. Mr. Eastman's friends must all vote if the Republican nominee is to be elected.

Mr. Eastman is just completing a term as Deputy County Treasurer
which has made him thoroughfamiliar with the duties of the office
and has demonstrated his ability to give the public prompt, fair and careful service. He will make a good official if elected, and deserves the unanimous support of the Republican voters of the county.

RATHBONE FOR CONGRESS

Henry R. Rathbone, candidate for Congressman at Large on the Republican ticket, is a great credit to the party that sponsors his candidacy and Lee county should give him a decidedly large majority. Mr. Rathbone is the kind of a man that is needed in American politics. It is seldom that a man of his calibre and makeup enters the turmoil and grief of a campaign. He is in politics for what he can get out of it. Encourage him, voters.
His honest opinions, expressed in the halls of congress in a way that few orators can surpass, would do congress
some good.

L. W. MILLER, ELECT HIM

We believe we can say without contradiction that no county in Illinois has a County Superintendent of Schools who can surpass in efficiency
and general qualifications Prof. L.
W. Miller, who has filled that very important office in Lee county for a number of years, greatly to the satisfaction of the citizens of the county.
Superintendent Miller should be,
and no doubt will be re-elected by a big vote. Lee county can not afford to lose his services

RESCUE

Dr. Einar Keys of Sweden discovers how to remove blood clots from an artery, by operation. Wild cheers, when he announces this in Boston at
the clinical congress of American College of Surgeons.

It is news of extreme importance,
for it involves the most valuable
thing in the world—human life.

Dr. Key's discovery will save thousands of people a year from becoming cripples. Heretofore a blood clot usually meant gangrene and amputation of arm or leg.

CANADIAN PRINT PAPER

Canada's part in the making of newspapers of the United States becomes increasingly important. In 1915, the year before the war, Canada
exported $11,050,632 worth of paper, chiefly to this country. In the fiscal year 1922 the dominion's exports aggregated $105,458,205, according to figures just made public by the Canadian bureau of statistics. And new plants now nearing completion are expected to add 10 per cent to the Canadian productive capacity next year.

The present capacity of the Canadian mills is, roughly, 3825 tons a day,

or 1,866,000 tons a year. By midwinter the figures will be 4185 tons a day, or 1,296,900 tons a year, and the improvement and enlargement of manufacturing facilities has just begun.
Canada has the pulp wood, and the papers this side the border need the paper. That is the whole story. And the price of Canadian paper is being pushed up $5 more a ton.

This year the newspapers of the United States will consume more than 2,300,000 tons of news print and our own mills can not be expected to produce more than 1,500,000. Canada
by her readiness to supply the rest,
has given news print third rank
among all her exports, and her stocks
of suitable timber are far from exhaustion.

The vexing thing about it is that,
although pulp wood within the borders of continental United States is being rapidly depleted, the practically inexhaustible supplies of Alaska are too far away to be available at any reasonable cost.

TWO-PARTY GOVERNMENT

The British government, like our own, presupposes the existence of two major parties in the state, one of which shall be in power and the other whichever it is, perennially in opposition. For two centuries the United Kingdom has been fortunate in that the whigs and Tories, liberals and conservatives, or whatever you choose to call them, have dominated the situation. For years the nation escaped the curse of little parties, always ready to trade, which has so handicapped attempts at parliamentary government across the channel.

In recent years, however, the rise of the labor party and of various groups with various aims for Ireland
has complicated the problems of government and threatened to throw the kingdom into the political confusion with which France is so familiar. Only such a personality as Lloyd George could have prevented trouble in the first years after the war.

Now, however, when Lloyd George steps out, it becomes immediately apparent that there are really only two parties to be counted on. The labor party's strength is waning, and for half a dozen years it has had only a make-trouble value. Asquith has only a limited and rather doctrinal
following. The great mass of the people are either liberal or unionist, as the Tories and conservatives seem to prefer to be called, and pretty well satisfied with these time-honored designations. Their reaction to the change from Lloyd George to Bonar Law is the best evidence that no one else has a chance.

H. W. Hayssen of Milwaukee, candidate of the Universal Brotherhood party for president of the United States in 1924, favors abolishing gold
as the medium of exchange. If he advertises his platform he should get
the votes of citizens who don't save their money.

The Michigan democratic state
committee concluded not to endorse
Ford for the presidency at this time.
Henry might have time trouble in too
long a run.

Not long after he turned to digging again, Jack was surprised to everybody was going to dig here," thought Jack. And he was not far

Soon the newcomers were hard at work. Jack surely had com-

THE FAIRIES' ADVICE

"What was it the gnomes stole?" she demanded.

The Fairy Queen was about to send Nancy and Nick on another adventure, a very important one. They were going to hunt for Mother
Goose's lost broom.

Everybody was giving advice.
"If I were you," said fat Mr. Ting-aling, the fairy landlord, "I'd look in all the cellars. That's where folks hide things, I've heard tell."

"No," interrupted Mr. Rubadub,
"look in the corners. That's where folks keep their brooms."

"Nothing of the sort," declared Mr.
Scribble Scratch, the schoolmaster.
"I'll bet you somebody has made a padding stick out of it. Look in the school rooms."

"You're all wrong," said Cap'n Pennywinkle, who lived in the ocean. "It would make a good car handle. Look in the boats, my dears, look in the boats."

"Ridiculous!" snorted Mr. Pim

Pim, the Brownies, in contempt. "It's as plain as the nose on the parson's
face that my enemies, the gnomes, have stolen it. Crookabone would stop at nothing."

"Goodness gracious alive, what's all this?" remarked a new voice, and who should come hobbling in but old Mother Goose herself, leaning heavily on a cane. "What was it the gnomes stole?" she demanded. "What? My broom! Ha, ha! That's a good joke.
No, the gnomes don't like brooms.
They hate them."

"No, the person who stole my broom, most likely, is one of my own people up in the sky but I don't know which one it is. Humpty Dumpty or Jack Horner or Simple Simon or somebody else. That's what we have to find out."

I'm weary of hearing
The folks who are jeering
And scolding and sneering
Away
And fretting and stewing
At aims were pursuing
And all we are doing
Today!

Was all the past merry?
Believe me, not very;
Few people were airy
And gay;
The average person
Had more cause for cursing
And got along worse'n
Today!

We're far from perfection,
But after reflection
And with circumspection
I'll say,
That though I'm demurring
At much that's occurring,
Life's vivid and stirring
Today!

CHAPTER III
ALWAYS Clinch's little pale eyes searched the forest twilight in front of him; not a falling leaf escaped him; not a chipmunk.

The slightest noise behind him. He waited, turned slowly. Eve stood there.

He died in his pale eyes as she came to him, rested silently in his gentle embrace, returned his kiss, laid her flushed, sweet cheek against his unshaven face.

"Dad, darling?"

"Yes, my baby?"

"You're watching to kill Quintana. But there's no use watching any longer."

"Have the boys below got him?"

He demanded.

"They got one of his gang. Byron Hastings is dead. Jim is badly hurt; Sid Hone, too—not so badly."

"Where's Quintana?"

"Dad, he's gone. . . . But it don't matter. See here!" She dug her slender hand into her breeches pocket and pulled out a little fistful of gems.

Clinch, his powerful arm closing her shoulders, looked dully at the jewels.

"You see, dad, there's no use killing Quintana. These are the things he robbed you of."

"Tain't them that matter. . . . I'm glad you got 'em. I alius wanted you should be a great lady, girlie. Them's the tickets of admission. You put 'em in your pants. I gotta say here a spell—"

"Dad, take them!"

He took them, smiled, shoved them into his pocket.

"What is it, girlie?" he asked absently, his pale eyes searching the woods ahead.

"I've just told you," she said, "that the boys went in as far as Quintana's shanty. There was a dead man there, too; but Quintana has gone."

Clinch said—no removing his eyes from the forest: "If any of them boys has let Quintana crawl through I'll kill him, too. . . . G'wan home, girlie. I gotta mosey—I gotta kinda loaf around fr a spell—"

"Dad, I want you to come back with me—"

"You go home; you hear me, Eve? Tell Corry and Dick Berry to look it up for Owl Marsh and stop the Star Peak trails—both on 'em. . . . Can Sid and Jimmy walk?"

"Jim can't—"

"Well, let Harve take him on his back. You go too. You help fix Jimmy up at the house. He's a little fella. Jimmy Hastings is. Harve can tote him. And you go along—"

"Dad, Quintana says he means to kill you!—What is the use of hurting him? You have what he took—"

"I gotta have more'n he took. But even that ain't enough. He couldn't pay for all he ever done to me, girlie. . . . I'm alimn' to draw on him on sight—"

Clinch's set visage relaxed into an alarming smile which flickered, faded, died in the wintry ferocity of his eyes.

"Dad—"

"G'wan home!" he interrupted harshly. "You want that Hastings boy to bleed to death?"

She came up to him, not uttering a word, yet asking him with all the tenderness and eloquence of her eyes to leave this blood-trail where it lay and hunt no more.

hind their trees. Clinch, in the ferocious pride of woodcraft, laughed exultingly—filled the dim and spectral forest with his roar of laughter.

"Quintana!" he called out, "you're a-going to cash in. Savvy? You're a-going to hop off. An' first you gotta hear why. Tain't for the stuff. Naw! I hooked it off'n you; you hooked it off'n me; now I got it again. That's all square. . . . No, tain't that grudge, you green-livered whelp of a cross-bred, still-born shuf! No! It's becuz you laid the heft o' your dirty little finger onto my girlie. 'N' now you gotta hop!"

Quintana's sinister laughter was his retort. Then: "You damfool Clinch," he said, "I got in my pocket what you rob of me. Now I kill you, and then I feel ver' well. I go home, live like some kings; yes. But you," he sneered, "you shall not go home never no more. No. You shall remain in these damn wood like ver' dead old rat that is all wormy. . . . He! I got a million dollars—five million francs in my pocket. You shall learn what it cost to rob Jose Quintana! Unnerstan'?"

"You liar," said Clinch contemptuously, "I got them jewels in my pants pocket!"

Quintana's derisive laugh cut him short: "I give you thee flaming Jewel if you show me you got my gems in you pants pocket!"

"I'll show you. Lay down your rifle so's I see the stock."

"First you, my fren' Mike," said Quintana cautiously.

Clinch took his rifle by the muzzle and shoved the stock into view so that Quintana could see it without moving.

To his surprise, Quintana did the same, then coolly stepped a pace outside the shelter of his hemlock stump.

"You show me now!" he called across the swamp.

Clinch stooped into view, dug into his pocket, and, cupping both hands, displayed a glittering heap of gems.

"I wanted you should know who's gotten," he said, "before you hop. It'll give you something to think over in hell."

Quintana's eyes had become slits again. Neither man stirred. Then:

"So you are huzzard, eh, Clinch? You feed on dead man's pockets, eh? You find Sard somewhere an' you feed."

He held up the morocco case, emblazoned with the arms of the Grand Duchess of Esthonia, and shook it at Clinch.

"In there is my share. . . . Not all. Ver' quick, now, I take yours, too—"

Clinch vanished and so did his rifle, and Quintana's first bullet struck the moss where the stock had rested.

"You black crow!" jeered Clinch, laughing, "I need that empty case of yours. And I'm going after it. . . . But it's because your filthy claw touched my girlie that you gotta hop!"

Twilight lay over the phantom wood, touching with pallid tints the flooded forest.

So far only that one shot had been fired. Both men were still manœuvring, always creeping in circles and always lining some great tree for shelter.

Now, the gathering dusk was making them bolder and swifter; and twice, already, Clinch caught the shadow of a fading edge of something that vanished against the shadows too swiftly for a shot.

Now Quintana, keeping a tree in line, brushed with his little back a leafless mouse-bush that stood swaying as he avoided it.

Instantly a stealthy hope seized him: he slipped out of his coat, spread it on the bush, set the naked branches swaying, and darted to his tree.

Waiting, he saw that the gray blot his coat made in the dusk was still moving a little—just vibrating a little bit in the twilight. He touched the bush with his rifle barrel, then crouched almost flat.

Suddenly the red crash of a rifle lit up Clinch's visage for a fraction of a second. And Quintana's bullet smashed Clinch between the eyes.

usually did when he was arguing with God or calling his Creator's attention to the justice of his case. His two cases—each, to him, a cause celebre; the matter of Harrod; the affair of Quintana.

Many a time he had pleaded these two causes before the Most High.

But now his thoughts were chiefly concerned with Eve—with the problem of her future—his master passion—this daughter of the dead wife he had loved.

He sighed unconsciously; halted. "Well, Lord," he concluded, in his wordless way, "my girlie has gotta have a chance if I gotta go to hell for it. That's sure as shootin' . . . Amen."

At that instant he saw Quintana. Recognition was instant and mutual. Neither man stirred. Quintana was standing beside a giant hemlock. His pack lay at his feet.

Clinch had halted—always the mechanics—close to a great iron-wood tree.

Probably both men knew that they could cover themselves before the other moved a muscle. Clinch's small, light eyes were blazing; Quintana's black eyes had become two slits.

Finally: "You—dirty—skunk!" drawled Clinch in his agreeably misleading voice. I got you now."

"Ah—h," said Quintana, "these has happen ver' nice like I expect. . . . Always I say mysef, yet a little patience, Jose, an' one day you shall meet thees fellow Clinch, who has rob you. . . . I am ver' thankful to the good God—"

He had made the slightest of movements; instantly both men were believingly most interesting. To me it seems the most logical one that has ever been offered for the change in the complexion of the football map.

"It's the coaches," said the old star, "they deserve a great share of the credit for the sudden rise of the west on the gridiron."

"Younger coaches prevail in the west. They seem to grasp the possibilities of the new game quicker, having played it. In addition they are willing to take chances."

"The forward pass is really a development of the middle west. At least as far as the receptive features of the play are concerned."

"The west has also done more with the shift. As a matter of fact the real trick features of the shift didn't emanate from the east. Coaches in the east have been too conservative. Possibly too many of them are from the old school, inclined to stick to straight football."

The argument advanced by the old star looked good to me. The western elevens are more versatile, due to the willingness of most of the coaches to experiment.

Of all the eastern elevens, Yale seems to be the worst victim of ancient methods. In the final minutes of the Iowa game, Yale carried the ball almost the length of the field with straight stuff. That makes it seem the talent is there to do big things with the new game.

How things have changed. The so-called "big three" is a thing of the past as far as superiority in football is concerned. As a matter of fact there are often more representative teams in the east than any of the trio. While not desiring to take the least bit of credit away from Iowa, Yale is a long-way from being the best eleven in the east.

During the recent world series it was my very good fortune to bump into a number of former gridiron stars who were passing up football until the actual close of the baseball season. I had a long talk with a player who ten years ago was one of the most talked about stars of the gridiron.

I asked him how he hoped out the rapidly with which the west has advanced in football and the way the east appears to have slipped. His reply was most interesting. To me it seems the most logical one that has ever been offered for the change in the complexion of the football map.

FOR PRESIDENT:

Back Porch Party: Andrew S. Gump.
Barn Stormers Party: Kernel Cootie.

(By Murphy)

The stage is set. The players are ready. The curtain goes up Monday, Nov. 6 on the greatest political battle of all ages. The organizations and machines of both parties are perfect—of, old, and in perfect tune. The Back Porch Party, headed by Andrew S. Gump, familiarly known as Andy, candidate for president, already claims the solid south and most of the east as theirs, and according to a straw vote (taken by the Back Porch Party) Andy will be the next president by nine votes.

On the other hand, Kernel Cootie, upon whom the Barn Stormers have pinned their faith, in a statement issued at headquarters today, expressed himself satisfied that his party would sweep the county (not via a broom) winning by a majority of at least eleven votes. "The north and west are ours. We cannot possibly lose," says the Kernel. "Confidence reigns supreme in both camps. Managers of both parties insist loudly and vehemently, their remarks punctuated forcibly by wildly waving arms, that their candidate will soon occupy the chair (presidential—not electric). But although confidence permeates both organizations, they are leaving no stone unturned, nothing to chance, but are working like "too much yeast" and will keep at it till the last vote is cast and the last returns from the last state are in.

This presidential campaign will be marked by a hitherto unheard of and unprecedented innovation. On Monday evening at 6:30, the first day of the election, the working organizations of both parties will engage in a friendly pow wow, banquet in form, to be held at the Y. M. C. A. At this banquet will be all the workers, henchmen and ward heelers of both parties and as cocksureness rules the organizations there is sure to be a large and varied amount of "razing."

Revive Spoils System

Kernel and Andy have both announced that they will revive the old "Spoils System." Political offices are to be awarded in proportion to the service rendered and the votes delivered. It will be a wide open campaign. Anything and everything goes. The object will be votes. Results only will be looked for.

Someone inquired about platforms. The Kernel responded at once, saying that he liked a large, high wooden one, decorated with autumn leaves, bright flags and brilliant bunting. He was also quoted as saying that he was in favor of free public band concerts every afternoon and evening, summer and winter. A tax on bachelors is also one of his strong planks. "A feller should be only too glad—and is no more than right—to pay for his freedom," says the Kernel, "and it should be worth much to be able to arrive home at 2 a. m. without having to explain where he has been and why the lodge meeting lasted so long."

For Free Soda Water

Andy when approached on the various questions of the day said, "If elected by first act will be to have free public drinking fountains of pink sody pop installed on every corner of the loop. Mr. Gump is also campaigning strongly for a tax on old maids."

"There ain't no use in 'em," says Andy, "and unless they got wooden legs or are cross-eyed, they should be able to catch a man right quick in Dixon, as they are too many happy, single young men running around loose." "Too much freedom ain't good for 'em."

The stand of the candidates on other important questions of the day will be made public later as well as notes on the progress of the campaign, plums to be picked and the lucky pickers who have picked out the

chance, but are working like "too much yeast" and will keep at it till the last vote is cast and the last returns from the last state are in.

REPUBLICANS EXPECT
GAINS IN SENATE IN
NEXT WEEK'S ELECTION

Also Anticipate Defeat of
a Few of Their House Members.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Nov. 3.—America's barometer of political and public opinion will be read at the polls
Tuesday, November 7, when another national House of Representatives,
more than a third of the Senate
membership, and 32 governors of states, together with state legislatures and local officials will be cho-

Nationally, the general election
Tuesday is the first of the Harding administration, thus it is regarded by many as a test, bearing upon the next Presidential campaign. The Republican "ins" go before the country largely on the record of President Harding and the present congress, an issue accepted by their democratic and other opponents.

Excepting in Maine, where the elections were held last September,
the new Sixty-eighth Congress of 435
members will be chosen Tuesday
from all states. Thirty-seven Senators in 31 states also will be elected.
The states electing governors are:
Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia,
Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts,
Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey,
New York, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyo-

oming.
Passing of Moose
The battle of ballots throughout the country largely is between the two dominant parties, Republican and Democratic. The election is marked by virtual passing of the Progressive, or Bull Moose, party.
Socialist, Prohibitionist, Farm-
Labor, Single Tax and other organizations, however, continue on the ballots here and there, with some independent and other miscellaneous designations. Also marking the local campaigns, and often affecting the congressional contests, are the liquor, Ku Klux Klan and other questions.

Congressional candidates mostly
are for the Sixty-eighth Congress
which will not assemble until December, 1922, unless a special session
next summer should be called. Of the 37 Senatorial seats at issue, 32
are for regular terms of six years
beginning in the next Congress and five to fill vacancies by death and resignation. In addition to the 435

members of the next House to be chosen, there are three to fill vacancies in the coming winter session,
two from Nebraska and one from Illinois.

Capture of control of the next House is the avowed objective of the democratic organizations or, failing
this, material reduction of the present republican majority of 165. The House now has 236 republicans, 130
democrats and one socialist, with eight seats vacant. A turnover of more than 80 seats is required for loss of the next House by the republicans.

The Senate now has 59 republicans, one republican-progressive and 36 democrats, with 17 republicans
and 15 democratic seats in the next Congress at issue Tuesday. Democratic leaders have said that only a miracle would change the political complexion of the next Senate at this election.

G. O. P. Expects Gains

Republican leaders expect to increase their Senate majority by a few members, and they also say they expect defeat of a number of sitting

House members, swept in two years ago in the Harding victory. Democratic managers on the other hand
are predicting some Senate as well as House reversions. Principal spots where republicans hope to oust democratic Senators and elect republicans are: Ohio, President Harding's
state, where Senator Pomerene, democrat, is opposed by Representative

There are 26 Senators who are candidates for continued service.
Three, Senators McCumber, republican, N. D., New, republican, Indiana, and Culberson, democrat, Texas,
were defeated for renomination in recent primaries, while three more whose terms expire March 3 next,
Senators Page, republican, Vermont,
Myers, democrat, Montana, and Williams, democrat, Mississippi, are retiring and did not stand for renomination.

Many Women Candidates

There are two women candidates for the Senate from Minnesota and Wisconsin and a score for the House
with many others for municipal and other local offices. The present and first woman Senator, Mrs. W. H.
Felton, of Georgia, appointed to succeed the late Senator Watson, is not a candidate for election, while the one woman House member, Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, is fighting for re-election in a normally democratic district.

For the 435 House seats there are 1,016 candidates, including 370 present members—245 republicans, 120
democrats and the one socialist.
Fifty-seven sitting members, 45 republicans and 11 democrats, did not seek re-election. Prominent among these are "Uncle Joe" Cannon and Representative Fordney of Michigan,
chairman of the ways and means committee.

Fifty-seven House candidates are sure of winning Tuesday, being without opposition and some holding nominations of both republican and democratic parties. Of these 43 are democrats and 14 republicans.

Breaks in several solid state delegations to Congress are predicted.
While the solid democratic contingents from southern states are expected to show no change, democratic leaders are predicting breaks
in the solid republican ranks now
coming from Ohio, Nebraska, Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan,
Minnesota and possibly Oregon, West
Virginia and Wisconsin.

HONEYMOONERS ABROAD—18.

EDNA MADDENED BY PARIS LIFE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

"Do you hear?" Edna shook him gently, annoyed that he did not reassure her about the good time, the business-less time, they should have in Paris. Of all places, Paris.

"Promise me, Jack, you'll forget Cousins just a few days?"
But Jack's eagerness to be up and after Cousins, his keyed-up nerves
and his anxiety to make good with his company kept him from making the reply Edna wanted.

"Do my best, Eddy, but you know—"
Abruptly she turned away from him,
her lips pressed into angry thinness.
"All right, Jack—" her voice was pitched low, but Jack was feeling her
to be unreasonably insistent and regarded the danger signal, "all right;
but I don't think you are treating me
fairly."

"I think I am; I'm doing it all for you."

It was in this mood that they met on the Paris express the Stanleys, a handsome, youngish couple, American in pep and daring, continental in sophistication, French in flirtatiousness.

They had no visible occupation in life except an international good time
—money no object.

They struck up an easy acquaintance with the Duryeas in the dining car and in the Duryeas' harassed mood
were rather welcomed than otherwise.

Mark Stanley, handsome, with prematurely gray hair and ruddy face, devoted himself at once to Edna, and knew how. Nella Stanley, raven-haired and spectacularly attractive, made Jack's chance attendance.

Edna was at first frightened, then amazed, for instead of finding mere amusement in Nella Stanley's blandishments, Jack seemed to take her seriously. She ended by feeling real anger and, to her own surprise, a desire to punish him. Her weapon was at hand.

The hysterical quality of Edna's animation was not noticed by either of the men.

It was enough for Mark Stanley that a pretty woman listened appreciatively, smiled, and looked with sparkling eyes into his.

It was enough for Jack that his wife
was capable of flirting with a stranger,
her provocation and the febrility of
her glitter escaping him.

By the time the two couples had reached Paris they were calling one another by their first names and had decided to stop at the same hotel.

When the train pulled in, Edna's
pulses were beating high.

Paris—her lifelong dream! And here it was, as inexpressibly charming as light in its touch of wickedness, as frank, as dazzlingly alluring as the most enthusiastic picture of it ever drawn.

She grew heady with the life of the boulevards, the cafes, the effortless
gaiety, the Paris of dress and exquisite

cooking, the charm of ancient crooked
streets, the splendor of the Rue de la Paix.

She scarcely saw Jack. She went everywhere with the Stanleys.

On the third day Jack said:
"London, Eddy—I've got to go—and finish this business."

Edna's breath came quickly, but she answered steadily enough:

"All right, Jack. I'm going to stay here."

The Stanleys exchanged a quick,
stealthy glance of triumph.

SPIRITUALIST PINCHED.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Pierre L. O. A.
Keeler, spiritualist, widely known as a medium and a "communist by letter" with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, was at liberty under $1,500 bond today following his arrest yesterday on charges
of operating a confidence game.

The charges were made by Mrs.
Nannie Dennis, who said Keeler promised to obtain messages for her dead
relatives and friends, but wrote the messages himself on a slate and pieces of paper.

Keeler, who came from Washington
recently to attend the National Spiritualist's convention, was freed on bonds
scheduled by Mrs. M. E. Cadwallier,
editor of a spiritualist magazine, Dr.
Carbures, president of the Illinois
State Spiritualists' Association, said
all the resources of that organization
would be used, if necessary to clear Keeler.

VOTE FOR BYERS

AND LEE COUNTY

JOHN H. BYERS of Lee County has represented this district in the Legislature with credit to the district and himself. He is a candidate for reelection and needs your support

JOHN BYERS can be trusted to represent his district fairly. His past record is fine. His fairness and trustworthiness and his long years of service to the Republican Party entitles him to your support at this time.

ANOTHER GOOD REASON why Byers should be given the support of the Republicans of this district is that he is NOT BACKED BY ANY POLITICAL FACTION.

NO SELFISH POLITICAL ORGANIZATION is interested in putting Byers over.

Nobody's Money is Being Used to Elect Him

If John Byers goes to the State Legislature he will go free to do the bidding of the residents of his district and it will not be necessary for him to discharge political obligations by taking orders from any political faction or any selfish interest.

moose, bear and wolves are numerous and there is a great abundance of small game.

In the camp this year were Dr. Sickels and Mrs. Sickels, Louis Pitcher and John Davies and the writer, all of Dixon and Dr. Tom Beveridge of Chicago. Miss Alma Koester of Dixon presided in the kitchen to the unqualified satisfaction of everybody. She even kept the sour-dough pancakes coming fast enough to suit Mr. Pitcher and Mr. Davies, which is all that anyone could do.

Louis Sickels and son Teddy, and Mr. McCurdy, all of St. Paul, also visited camp for a few days and took home their limit of game.

Carl Shogren, Jr., performed the arduous duties of guide for the party. He is a worthy son of a worthy sire and knows the great woods of the north like an open book. A trip through the woods with Carl nets three times the information that a trip alone would do.

Dr. Sickels arranged many expeditions from camp to duck hunting grounds within a radius of twenty miles that were extremely productive of good sport. A new territory known as the Pigeon River country, was thoroughly explored and regions seldom penetrated by hunters afforded fine mallard shooting. Better part-time shooting was never known than this fall in the north. And the other half of that story is that no better dish ever graced a king's dinner table than a large platter of fried partridge. After a long day on the water or in the woods, Boy! it hits the spot. We, meaning Dr. Sickels and the writer, did a lot of work on the woodpile, sometimes accompanied by the feeble efforts of Dr. Beveridge and Mr. Davies superintended by Gen. Shot Louis, but when the crew gathered around the table the real heavy work was done.

Angier Wilson, Charles Sheffield, Frank Coe and Joe Miller established a hunting camp near the Sickels' cabin and also enjoyed a fine vacation. Dr. E. S. Murphy and Jack Roberts, also of Dixon, visited us one day from their hunting camp on Squaw Lake.

John Davies showed us that his education had not been confined to the banking business and he displayed an astounding knowledge of the ways and manners of the turtle family. And Louis Pitcher, popular telephone man, added to his already national wide fame as crack shot. They call him "Good shot Loolee" up in that country now and many a green-head has met with an accident by flying too close to Mr. Pitcher's gun.

One day a part of the camp took a day off and drove to International Falls, inspecting the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company's mammoth print paper manufacturing plant. It is in this mill, the largest in America and one of the largest in the world, that the paper on which the Evening Telegraph is printed is manufactured. The party also crossed the international bridge at Ft. Francis in Canada, getting by the customs officers without the slightest difficulty much to Mr. Pitcher's chagrin. A spin along the shores of Rainy Lake, beautiful body of water 80 miles long, and a visit with a hardly little fur buyer who thinks nothing of taking his dog team and snowshoes and hiking 1400 miles straight north to buy furs from the Indians above Ft. Churchill completed a very interesting day.

One outstanding feature of the north country to one from this section of the country is the wonderful road work that has done up there in the wilderness. State roads are being built to all important points through swamps and wooded hills totally uninhabited by man that shame the roads of this country. On the trip to International Falls we drove for at least fifty miles through spruce and tamarack and cedar swamps where there was not one turnoff in the road and not even one settler's cabin—just a vast and impenetrable swamp stretching away on either side, and the road was forty feet wide and as smooth as a floor. The land was probably not worth five dollars an acre. Wisconsin and Minnesota are making wonderful strides in road building. If they can build boulevards through almost worthless wilderness, why cannot we have better roads in a rich and thickly populated territory such as Illinois?

The Dixon folks have kind remembrances of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shogren, Senior and Junior and their families and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Shellander and their little ones, for we are all deeply indebted to those kind and splendid pioneer settlers in the woods.

Well, two weeks in the north woods with a golden day and silver nights went like a flash and leave only pleasant memories for winter nights to come and a hope that some time again we can get back where the days are lived by the whistle of the blue-bill's wings and the whirr-r-r of the flushed "partridge" or the crashing stampede of the startled buck and where the nights are clear and cold and beautiful in a brilliant stillness punctuated only by the mournful wail in the timber or the mad wailing of the loon far out on the lake.

WHY ARE TAXES HIGH? WHO GETS THE MONEY?

Byers and Tourtellott voted for the appropriation, ninety-three new state jobs, with salaries from $1500 to $7000 per year were provided by the appropriation.
Summary of increase in two departments:
Increased appropriation to health department under Small $ 475,849
Increased appropriation to administer utility law under Small 722,560

Increased appropriation for two departments under Small $1,180,409

This increase is caused by new jobs and padded pay rolls and is typical of all appropriations made under the Small administration. More than $4,000,000 increased appropriations can be accounted for in like manner. Space will not permit enumeration of the various items.

It is because Devine voted against these appropriations and called attention to them on the floor of the house when they were being voted upon, and in the public press, that the Thompson-Lundin-Small machine is trying to bring about his defeat and elect three Republican candidates to the legislature who will not actively oppose their program at the next session.

Byers and Tourtellott voted for these appropriations to furnish political patronage to this machine that is trying to keep its grasp upon the people of Illinois. Leading Republicans and the public press throughout the state approved of Devine's efforts in the last session to defeat the Thompson-Lundin-Small machine.

Byers and Tourtellott voted with the machine. They are now seeking re-election and ask to be returned to the next session, and they have given no assurance to the voters of this district that they will not vote with the Thompson-Lundin Small machine at the next session.

The Democratic vote of the 35th Senatorial District is not sufficient to re-elect Devine. It will take a large Republican vote to insure his re-election. Republicans can elect two candidates and divide their vote with Devine and insure his re-election. The Thompson-Lundin Small machine framed this fight against Devine in order to avoid his opposition in the next session. Republicans in this district who are against that machine will give it real opposition in the next session by re-electing Devine.

Do not be misled by political processions going through the district with brass bands and imported orators pleading that a straight Republican ticket be voted. The Thompson-Lundin Small machine is not straight and the representatives who voted for padded pay rolls and increased appropriations to build up that machine have forfeited their right to party support.

APPROPRIATIONS AT THE NEXT SESSION MUST BE CUT, NOT WITH A PRUNING KNIFE, BUT AN AXE. DEVINE CAN BE DEPEND UPON TO DO THIS. HIS RECORD IN THE LEGISLATURE SHOWS THAT HE STANDS FOR LESS LAWS; MORE LAW ENFORCEMENT; LOWER COST OF GOVERNMENT; LESS TAXES. YOU CAN HELP PUT THIS PROGRAM IN FORCE IN ILLINOIS BY MARKING YOUR BALLOT.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

X JOHN P. DEVINE

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ON MINORITY LEADER JOHN P. DEVINE IN THE LAST SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

"This session will go down in history for the magnitude of its appropriations, the bitterness of the fight between factions of the majority party, and the energy of the minority in both houses, especially as represented in the lower house by such men as John P. Devine, of Dixon, and a number of others."—Springfield Register, June, 1921.

LEGISLATURE ADJOURNED.

At last the people of the state can heave a sigh of relief as the legislature has adjourned and the Lundin-Thompson-Small crowd has left the dome on the State House. Hardly from choice, but the fact that it is fast. From the way the crowd appropriated the people's money it would not have been surprising had they gotten away with the whole building. The last session should be one of great pride (?) to the members who so faithfully followed the above crowd. Some of them wilted at the last, the stench becoming too strong for them. Minority Leader Devine, though a Democrat, had the audacity to stand up and face the gang in an effort to hold down the appropriations, but of course, lost out. No matter what his motive—good sense, politics or what, he should be encouraged for his efforts to protect the taxpayer.—Lee County Times (Republican.)

GOV. SMALL'S NOTION OF ECONOMY

Friends of governmental economy and efficiency urged Gov. Small to apply the pruning knife boldly and vigorously to the appropriation bills jammed through the legislature in the closing hours of the session. The omnibus bill and other measures were pronounced by many members of both houses as full of jobbery and graft. Particular items of striking merit, inserted at the demand of spoilsmen, were pointed out by Representative Devine and others. Gov. Small had a splendid opportunity to save several million dollars to the taxpayers without impairing the efficiency of a single service.

Unfortunately, the governor had other notions of economy. He applied the knife, or rather the ax, but in the wrong place. The grafts and jobbery he appears not to have touched. On the other hand, he has slashed appropriations ruthlessly in directions never contemplated by honest champions of economy.—Daily News, Saturday, July 2, 1922.

WHY A SPECIAL SESSION?

The good work of the 53d assembly has been mainly defensive, in defeating the attempt of spoilsmen to build up an overwhelmingly powerful machine. Good government had its back to the wall, fighting for its life, and a movement forward was impossible. For the few progressive measures which actually got through and for the defeat of the machine builders, the state will be grateful to the handful of constructive leaders of the assembly whom the emergency has raised up. Amongst these John P. Devine, Democratic leader in the house, stands pre-eminent in courage and consistency.—Chicago Evening Post, July 20, 1921.

COMMITTEE ASKS FOR THREE CANDIDATES.

Had a few Republicans exhibited as much backbone as did Devine in the last legislature in trying to balk the nefarious schemes of the Thompson-Lundin-Small gang, a much better report might have been written and the tax rate some lower.—Lee County Times, March 23, 1922.

While the Chronicle dislikes to disarrange the plans of anyone who may be laying the foundation of an imposing political machine in this district, it would not be doing its duty to the people it serves if we did not protest against such a selfish and offensively partisan action as this of the committee which seems to mean an attempt to put out of public life, a man, who, though a Democrat, is the biggest figure that the 35th district has sent down to Springfield in many a year.

We refer to the minority leader in the house of representatives, John P. Devine, of Dixon.

John is of the opposite political faith to ours. He is a Democrat. Democracy is woven into the fabric of his being, and he conscientiously battles for that political belief. We think his political belief is wrong.

But John Devine is an honest Democrat and he has never allowed his political faith to work to the advantage of his district. He has worked for it and fought for it in the lower house through all of his career and never once has a citizen of this district been discriminated against by Mr. Devine because he was a Republican.—DeKalb Chronicle.

We do not hesitate to say so openly, that Devine is the ablest candidate of the whole outfit, Republican or Democrat. He has had more experience, is a lawyer who knows what lawfully can be done in the legislature. He ought to have the solid support of every Democrat in this district and will get the support of hundreds of Republicans. There would be little sorrow anywhere, except to the defeated candidate, if he should be elected.—The Sterling Gazette (Republican.)

This election of members to the legislature comes to us this time as an issue of taxation, pure and simple. You cannot escape it. Every man who pays taxes is interested. All of us know it to be true, because never has there been so much criticism of high taxes as in the last year. Rent on farms have been lowered; everything the farmer buys has been raised; he gets less for his product and his taxes year after year have been raised out of all decency. How are you going to get them down? In all sincerity what can we expect of a man like Tourtellott to beat a bad measure? He voted for all of them last session. Conceding Allen to be a man of good intentions, what can we expect of him? He has not the slightest experience and he could not stop a bad measure to save his life. Byers last session did nothing to stop bad legislation. He, too, voted for the unconscionable Omnibus bill. Devine voted against it, and what is more, he, more than any other man in the legislature, actually defeated many of the rotten bills which tried to work themselves through the house at the last session.

It is about time we began looking after the fellows who are eternally looking after new offices and increasing the pay of others. It is notoriously a fact that millions of our taxes are literally thrown away to keep cheap political job holders in line. You pay for it and I pay for it. Let's help stop it by sending one experienced man to Springfield, anyway, Devine.—Sycamore Tribune (Republican.)

Read what Mrs. Lucas Writes Concerning Her Troubles, which May be Just Like Yours

St. Louis, Mo. — "I had troubles that all women are apt to have, with pains in my back, weak, tired, nervous feelings and a weak stomach. I had been this way about a year and was unable to work or stand on my feet for any length of time. My husband's aunt told me how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her and begged me to try it, so I did. All my pains and weakness are gone, my stomach is all right and I do my work at home and also work for Swift's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. LULU LUCAS, 719A Vandeventer St., St. Louis, Mo.

Again and again one woman tells another of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

You who work must keep yourself strong and well. You can't work if you are suffering from such troubles.

Mrs. Lucas couldn't. She tried our Vegetable Compound and her letter tells you what it did for her. Give it a fair trial now.

NEW YORK LETTER

BY LUCY JEANNE PRICE.

New York.—The beautiful Jeanne T. Arc painted by Alfred Rigny and hanging in the little chapel of the Jeanne d'Arc Home for French Girls, 253 West Twenty-fourth street, was too unworlily looking to suit the taste of a house painter employed to do some work there. Also the flock of sheep tended by her didn't suit him in their shorn condition. So he touched up the face of the peasant girl, to suit his more modern and more metropolitan taste, and added wool to the backs of the sheep. The girls and Sisters in charge of the home were startled at the inexplicable changes which had come over their beloved picture and sent for Mr. Rigny. He discovered the added pigments and learned that it was the work of the house painter who "might not know much about art, but knew what he liked," and saw his duty to make any improvements he saw needed in the building; paintings or walls, it was all one to him.

We no more than get the society folk back in town to enjoy their idleness, than the social columns are flooded with news of their winter plans away from here. It is pertinent to ask if they have grown tired of Palm Beach. Some are quoted as saying it has grown "frightfully bourgeois," and the trend would seem to be toward the neighboring Nassau, where the government of the Bahamas is waiting with open arms to lure the smart people from the sleet and ice of New York to the sunlit waters and velvet lawns of its country. It is all possible through the organization of the exclusive Nassau-Bahamas Club, paraphrased as the "club for club men," sponsored by such social factors as Edward Crozer, L. G. Kaufman, James Potter, O. H. Gruener, Stewart Waller, A. F. Mathews, Henry T. Hunt, Geo. B. Hulme, and John Harriman, with equal enthusiasm from the ladies under the leadership of Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe, and

Mrs. W. R. J. Zimmerman. There will be a huge club house facing the ocean built in the Spanish mission style, and 20 bungalows in the vast club grounds. Night accommodations are also arranged at the private fishing camp within a short distance from the club house. The account of the attending luxuries is most alluring, and with the guaranteed weather in Nassau—the rain is turned on and off by the calendar—it would seem that we are to have our own Monte Carlo and Deauville within a glider's fly. Speaking of flying, among our famous visitors this week is the former Countess Drogheda, known as the "Flying Countess," a name she received years ago after she started her social world in Paris by her airplane flights. It was before planing became an every-day fact, and for a woman to attempt it was not only daring in the extreme, but—well you know—a bit too extreme to be expected. The Countess is now less interestingly named plain Mrs. Escandon, and she says that along with her title she also surrendered her high altitude ambitions when she married. But the air is bound to be misused as all of the other highways. A thief in an airplane, flying low over one of the outlying districts with a long clothes line. Is the latest recruit in robbery. He drew a rich harvest in the overcoats and fur garments hanging out for an airing and had a distinct advantage in putting distance between him and his victims. The modern version in nursery rhymes will probably read: And down came an airman and packed off her clothes. We are having an international season in the theatre. I have gone so often I almost know Russian, and now I find I must dust up my French. Shortly, I will tell of yet another nation to be represented. The immediate foreign call is in the appearance of Mme. Cecile Sorel, with her company from the Comedie Francaise. We can be grateful to the enterprising Shuberts for this treat, the work having been undertaken some time ago by Augustus Thomas. The company will be here but a week, and then go on tour. Dramatists such as Augier, Dumas, Moliere, and a French version of our own Will Shakespeare, are to be included. To have leading lights from the Comedie, the Odeon and Theatre Sarah Bernhardt, shine among us, is indeed a privilege.

Do You Suffer From Backache or Pain in Your Side?

THEN READ THIS.

Champaign, Ill. — "For over six years I suffered with woman's weakness; my health became so bad that I could scarcely get around the house. At times I would be in bed from three to six weeks, during which time I suffered untold agony from backaches and pains in my left side. I was in such a nervous condition that I did not rest at night and at times I was so bad I would just want to scream. I doctored all this time without relief—was told the only way I would get well was to have an operation, but I would not consent to this. Then I decided to give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a trial. I have taken it only about three months, and the results have been perfectly marvelous. My health is better than it has been for years. I am able to do all my own work, including washing, a thing I had not done for years. I cannot thank Dr. Pierce and his Favorite Prescription enough for the help I have received. I only hope that my testimony may induce some other suffering woman to try Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. Louise Tarter, 365 W. Interesting Novel Features for Big Sunday Newspaper

Chicago.—Leading educators in art in both the elementary and advanced fields have gone on record for the first time in Chicago with their unqualified approval of a newspaper feature as a valuable adjunct to artistic development of the child mind. Miss Lucy S. Silke, supervisor of art in the elementary schools of Chicago, and Clarence Hough, in charge of the Art Institute, both heartily endorsed this week the introduction by the Chicago Herald and Examiner in its Sunday editions of its new series of Magic Pictures. These pictures, contained in an eight-page Book of Magic, are printed in black and white. Within the outlines are secreted hidden colors, which at the touch of plain water spring into vivid, beautiful tints, making, when fully developed, a harmonious and brilliant painting in full colors. Miss Silke, in a letter to the editor of the Herald and Examiner, says: "As an art teacher I am interested in affording the children every opportunity to develop skill of hand and appreciation of form and color through play. The Book of Magic opens up a new field among educational toys available at a price within the reach of all. The idea has many possibilities and I would like to see it improved upon and developed." Mr. Hough, representing the advanced art colony, said: "I am pleased to learn that you are to inaugurate a new series of your magic pictures. It needs but little to inspire the imagination of a child, and when the little folks are given the opportunity of taking a hand in turning colorless pictures into colored ones merely by touching them with water the seed is sown for the development of a sense of harmony and an appreciation of color values that may be of the greatest future value to the child. The first of the new series of Magic Pictures will be published in the Sunday Herald and Examiner next Sunday, and will be made a regular Sunday feature of that newspaper thereafter.
